Sons of the American Legion
American Legion Riders

Who is eligible to join?

There are three ways to join our Legion family ... see which one fits you below:

1. The American Legion (Legionnaire)

If you are currently serving in the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines or Coast Guard or have served on active duty during the date ranges of one of the times of conflict listed below under 'Eligibility Dates', and were honorably discharged and possess a form DD-214.

Current and past members of the national guard and Reserve may also be eligible for membership provided they had periods of active duty in one or another of the eligible eras. Annual summer training and weekend drills do not constitute eligible periods of service. Active duty is the key to Legion membership.

I am eligible to join, now how do I prove it?

The American Legion establishes proof of eligibility based on a DD-214 form. The DD-214, or DD Form 214 is a document of the United States armed forces issued by the Department of Defense upon a military service member's separation or discharge from the active duty military.

The full name of the document is "Defense Department Form 214", however the document is often shortened to be called a DD-214, DD Form 214 or simply as a "sep doc". A DD-214 is also commonly referred to as "Discharge Papers", however this is slightly misleading as the document is more often issued for release from active duty and transfers to the inactive reserves than it is for final discharge from the military.

DD-214 is widely regarded as one of the most important documents in the military as it is a complete record of a service member's time in the military, awards and medals, and other pertinent service information such as promotions, combat service or overseas service, and Military Occupational Specialty identifiers. DD-214 is commonly used by various government agencies, chief among them the Department of Veterans Affairs, to secure veteran benefits.

Where can I find the DD-214 form?

If the veteran through whom you qualify doesn't already have their DD-214 form readily available then the National Personnel Records Center (NPRC) has provided a website for veterans to gain access to their DD-214 online: www.vetrecs.archives.gov. This may be particularly helpful when a veteran needs a copy of his DD-214 for employment purposes or for membership in The American Legion.

Veterans and the next of kin of deceased veterans may now use a new online military personnel records system to request documents. Other individuals with a need for documents must still complete the Standard Form 180, which can also be downloaded from the online web site. Because the person making the request will be asked to supply all information essential for NPRC to process the request, delays that normally occur when NPRC has to ask veterans for additional information will be minimized.

I have the DD-214 form, what's next?

This is what you need to do to join the American Legion Matthew Blount Post 555.
